

HURRICANE SEASON 2018

How to register for the

Mobile Alert App

Keeping you and your family safe is important. And knowing what is going on in the world around you is critical in maintaining that safety. Whether a tornado has formed near your home or a boil-water notice is issued for your area, it could be lifesaving to know that you need to take action.

CodeRED is a notification service your public safety officials provide for you that alerts you to emergencies happening nearby, so you can stay informed and make decisions that will positively impact your well-being.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

Step 1

Download
Download the free CodeRED Mobile Alert app by visiting the Google Play or App Store and searching for "CodeRED Mobile Alert app".

Step 2

Register
Open CodeRED and create a new registration. Keep in mind this will be a different login from our desktop version.

Step 3

Settings
Once your account is created, open your settings. Here you can decide what type of alerts you'd like to receive, the alert sound, your personal warning radius and more. This app will follow you wherever you go and will send you notifications about alerts around you.

Step 4

Weather
Also in your settings, you have the ability to subscribe to CodeRED weather warnings. These alerts will keep you informed about sudden severe weather and could mean the difference between life and death.

Step 5

Get help
Want a quick walk-through? In settings at the very bottom, there is a link to a tutorial on the mobile app (or under "help" if you're on Android), and we highly recommend taking a look! There is also a helpful list of FAQs for any questions you may have.

Helpful Tips

From the home map screen, zoom out to view all active alerts in the United States. This allows you to check on the relatives or other properties and see what is happening.

We are optimized not to drain your smartphone's battery! In order for you to be protected, our location services do need to run in the background.

Use this app while you travel! If the city you're visiting is a CodeRED customer, you'll be able to receive emergency notifications wherever you're located.

SAFETY TIPS

- Know where to go. If you are ordered to evacuate, know the local hurricane evacuation route(s) to take and have a plan for where you can stay. Contact your local emergency management agency for more information.
- Put together a disaster supply kit, including a flashlight, batteries, cash, first aid supplies, and copies of your critical information if you need to evacuate.
- If you are not in an area that is advised to evacuate and you decide to stay in your home, plan for adequate supplies in case you lose power and water for several days and you are not able to leave due to flooding or blocked roads.

- Make a family emergency communication plan. Many communities have text or e-mail alerting systems for emergency notifications. To find out what alerts are available in your area, search the Internet with your town, city, or county name and the word "alerts".

Each year, the NHC adjusts the size of its cone of uncertainty based on its average error over the previous five hurricane seasons. The cone of uncertainty refers to the projected path map you frequently see on the internet or television for a given storm.

2. Hazard information will be conveyed more than 48 hours in advance

The NHC's formal advisory package includes a text statement that includes all hazards – storm surge, wind, inland flooding, tornadoes, increased surf – ahead of a tropical storm or hurricane.
 Beginning in 2018, when the forecast confidence is high enough, a discussion of any applicable hazards will go well beyond two days in advance.
 This will allow forecasters at the NHC to discuss high-impact high-confidence storms, like Hurricane Maria in 2017, as much as 5 days in advance.

3. Changes in forecast wind products

The NHC will make one of its trial run products from 2017 operational this year: a forecast for the time when it is too late to be making preparations for a tropical storm or hurricane outside.

This product shows when sustained winds could at the earliest reach 40 mph or make it dangerous to be outside doing anything, including preparedness activities. Winds of this intensity and higher gusts can cause damage to structures and can overturn and/or move some objects like ladders and plywood.
 Generally, police, fire and ambulance support will stop answering requests for help when winds reach between 35 and 45 mph in a given area.
 A similar graphic, not shown here, will show when sustained winds of 40 mph or greater will most likely reach a given area.
 The NHC will also be making a 48-hour hurricane force wind radius forecast beginning this season.
 Before 2018, these forecasts only went out to 36 hours. This improvement will allow forecasters to better communicate the risk of hurricane force winds for a given hurricane earlier before a hurricane arrives at a certain location.
